Cookie Policy

Cookies on karovlegal.com, Google Analytics 4 and how to manage consent.

What cookies are

Cookies are small text files that a website or its providers may store in your browser. Similar technologies can store or retrieve information on your device. This policy describes their use on karovlegal.com.

Cookie categories

Essential cookies support site operation, security and retention of cookie choices. Statistical cookies help us understand use of the site through Google Analytics 4 and are activated in line with consent choices and current settings. The source policy does not list advertising cookies in the confirmed configuration. The policy and banner will be updated if new categories or tools are introduced.

Cookies identified on the site

The `_ga` cookie supports Google Analytics and was observed on karovlegal.com in a private browser session. Complianz uses `cmplz_policy_id` and `cmplz_banner-status` to remember the policy version and the status of your choices. The `_grecaptcha` cookie was identified in a scan and may be set when reCAPTCHA loads to protect forms.

WordPress, Elementor and hosting cookies can appear in administrative or scanning sessions. Cookies and their durations can vary by page, session, consent and browser settings.

Google Analytics retention

GA4 processes visit statistics, including online identifiers. The source policy records settings of 14 months for user data and two months for event data on the Analytics account. These periods are distinct from the lifetime of the `_ga` browser cookie, which can depend on configuration and browser settings. See Google’s documentation and privacy policy for information about its processing.

Managing consent

On your first visit, use the cookie banner to accept, reject or configure categories. You can revise your choice through the site’s cookie settings. Withdrawal of consent does not affect processing that took place lawfully before withdrawal.

Browser settings

Most browsers let you block or delete cookies. Blocking essential cookies may affect site features. Clearing browser cookies does not remove data already collected in Analytics. To make a request, email office@karovlegal.com. This policy is updated when cookies, integrations or settings change.